

Do you have these symptoms?

Your GP wants to know. Chances are, it's nothing serious, but if it's lung cancer, the time to know is now.

Why? You're far more likely to survive early stage lung cancer than late stage lung cancer. Seeing your GP promptly could save your life.

Spotting cancer early saves lives

It's normal to see your GP about any one of these unexplained symptoms – it's probably nothing serious, but you're not wasting anyone's time by getting it checked out.

Tick the box if you have any of these unexplained symptoms:

- Coughing for three or more weeks
- A change in a long-standing cough
- Coughing up blood at any time
- Breathlessness for three or more weeks
- Breathlessness worse than usual if you've got COPD or asthma
- Feeling more tired than usual for three or more weeks
- Losing weight for no apparent reason
- An ache or pain in your chest or shoulder for three or more weeks
- Repeated chest infections

If you've ticked any one of these boxes, show this card to your GP as soon as possible.

Don't wait for the symptom to get worse before you see your GP.

Make sure you're around for the people you love.
